

Carson Lloyd selected to perform in prestigious concert

DUXBURY – Duxbury High School senior Carson Lloyd has been selected to perform violin in the NAFME (National Association for Music Education) All East Honors Ensemble Orchestra, performing for an audience of thousands at the Bushnell Center of the Performing Arts in Hartford, Conn., April 7.

This orchestra is made up of approximately 150 of the best high school musicians in 13 eastern states, from Washington, D.C. to Maine. He is one of five musicians selected from Massachusetts.

Over 700 musically talented high school musicians in band, orchestra, treble and mixed chorus will be working on challenging music over the three days of intensive rehearsals in preparation for Sunday's performance. These musicians will be performing under the leadership of four prominent conductors for this biennial event.

Lloyd, who has been playing violin since fourth grade, first studied violin with Plymouth Phil cellist Bonnie Rapier Harlow, herself a graduate of Duxbury High School. He then studied with Victor Romanul, violinist with the Boston Symphony, and currently Clayton Hoener, violinist with the Boston Pops. He has studied with both Jim Vinci and Nick Tatarka in the Duxbury High School Music Department
